

Annual Reviews

(<http://arjournals.annualreviews.org>)

Annual Reviews provides researchers, professors, and scientific professionals with a definitive academic resource in 33 scientific disciplines. Annual Reviews saves time by synthesizing the vast amount of primary research literature and identifying the principal contributions. Editorial committees comprised of the most distinguished scholars in the discipline select all topics for review, and the articles are written by authors who are recognized experts in the field. Annual Reviews publications are among the highest cited publications by impact factor according to the Institute for Scientific Information® (ISI). UGC-Infonet Digital Library Consortium members can access 33 journals of Annual Reviews.

Accessible to: 122 Univ. (Phase I & II)

IMMIGRATION LAW, RACIAL CONSTRUCTION, AND THE CHALLENGE OF BOUNDARY MAINTENANCE

Section: Choose

Race and the Shaping of U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Law

A long tradition of social science scholarship highlights the role that U.S. immigration and naturalization laws historically have played in the development of racial categories and, conversely, the role of racism in shaping these laws over time. Most notably, scholars often point out that one of the young nation's first decrees and its first statute regulating citizenship declared in 1790 that naturalization was to be limited to "free white persons" (1 Stat. 103) (Ormi & Winant 1994, p. 81; Haney López 1996; Minow 1997, p. 59; Delgado & Stefancic 2001, p. 77; Goldberg 2001). The statute aimed to bar the naturalization of both immigrants deemed nonwhite and the Africans who had been subject to forced migration. The limiting of eligibility for naturalization to those who qualified as white was lifted only on an ad hoc basis until the mid-twentieth century. The Naturalization Act of 1870 (16 Stat. 254) extended the possibility of naturalization to persons of "African nativity and African descent" following the Civil War and enactment of the Fourteenth Amendment; the bar against Chinese naturalization was lifted in 1943; Filipino and Indian naturalization was permitted in 1946, despite the fact that all these groups had been declared nonwhite by the courts. But the racial basis for naturalization was not formally removed until the McCarran-Walter Act of 1952 (66 Stat. 239).

Beyond this foundational element of racism in U.S. naturalization law, numerous scholars have documented its role in excluding particular nationalities from immigration to the United States and in so doing elaborating racial theories and shoring up racial boundaries. The Quota Laws of 1921 and 1924, the first time that U.S. immigration lawmakers set out to restrict significantly the

Quick Search

A quick search box is available on most pages. Enter a word or phrase in the box provided. Selecting the Search button performs a default search: By default all Annual Reviews series are searched and the results are displayed by relevancy to the search criteria. A user can also search from particular series by selecting This series

Advance Search

The Advanced Search can be used to search for specific terms in specific fields. The fields that can be specified for searching are full text, abstract, article title, keywords, author, and year. Users can also search All Fields at once.

The screenshot shows the 'Advanced Search' page of the INFLIBNET Centre. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for Home, Order, Browse, Search, Profile, Help, and Contact Us. Below the navigation bar, the page title is 'Advanced Search' with links for 'Search Tips' and 'Previous and Saved Searches'. The main search area is divided into several sections:

- Find reviews with: Radio buttons for 'all of the words', 'the exact phrase', 'at least one of the words', and 'none of the words'. The 'all of the words' option is selected. A text input field contains the word 'law'.
- Location: A dropdown menu is set to 'anywhere in the review'.
- Author: A text input field for 'Return reviews written by'.
- Publication: A dropdown menu is set to 'Any Series'. A list of series is visible: 'Biomedical Sciences', 'Analytical Chemistry (2008)', 'Biochemistry', and 'Biomedical Engineering'.
- Date: Two text input fields for 'Return reviews published between' are set to '1930' and '2007'.

Five blue callout boxes with arrows point to specific elements: 'Enter Search Term Here' points to the search input field; 'Enter Author Name Here' points to the author input field; 'Select Review from List' points to the publication dropdown menu; 'Type Year (Period)' points to the date input fields; and another 'Enter Search Term Here' box points to the 'law' text in the search input field.

Search results of previous query

The screenshot shows the INFLIBNET Centre search results page. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for Home, Order, Browse, Search, Profile, Help, and Contact Us. Below this, the search results for the query 'law' are displayed. The results are sorted by Relevance Date. The first result is 'GLOBALIZATION OF LAW' by Terence C. Halliday and Pavel Osinsky, published in the Annual Review of Sociology, Volume 32, Page 447-470, Aug 2006. The second result is 'The Rule of Law' by John K.M. Ohnesorge, published in the Annual Review of Sociology, Volume 32, Page 447-470, Aug 2006. A blue callout bubble points to the title 'GLOBALIZATION OF LAW' with the text 'Click here to view article'. Another blue callout bubble points to the 'Full Text' and 'PDF' links at the bottom of the page with the text 'View Full text article in PDF /HTML format'. The 'Full Text' and 'PDF' links are circled in red.

The screenshot shows the abstract page for the article 'GLOBALIZATION OF LAW'. The title is 'GLOBALIZATION OF LAW' and the authors are Terence C. Halliday<sup>1</sup> and Pavel Osinsky<sup>2</sup>. The abstract text is: 'Abstract Globalization of law may be defined as the worldwide progression of transnational legal structures and discourses along the dimensions of extensity, intensity, velocity, and impact. We propose that a theory of the global penetration of law will require at least four elements—actors, mechanisms, power, and structures and arenas. A comparison of four approaches to globalization and law—world polity, world systems, postcolonial globalism, and law and economic development—indicates considerable variation in perceived outcomes and gaps in explanation, but with possible complementarities in both outcomes and explanatory factors. Research demonstrates that globalization is variably contested in several domains of research on law: (a) the construction and regulation of global markets, (b) crimes against humanity and genocide, (c) the diffusion of political liberalism and constitutionalism, and (d) the institutionalization of women's rights. We propose that the farther global practices are located from core local cultural institutions and beliefs, the more likely they will provoke explicit contestation and confrontation. Future research will need to address to where and how global law originates, how and when global norms are enforced, and how global-local settlements are negotiated.' A blue callout bubble points to the 'Full Text' and 'PDF' links at the bottom of the page with the text 'View Full text article in PDF /HTML format'. The 'Full Text' and 'PDF' links are circled in red. On the right side, there are links for 'Prev. Article', 'Next Article', 'Full-text HTML', 'View/Print PDF (135.1 KB)', 'Add to Favorites', and 'Email link to a friend'. Below these links is a 'Quick Links' section with links for 'RSS (Series Update Alert)', 'Chain of Reviews', 'Citing Papers via ISI Web of Science (3 or more)', 'Citing Papers via CrossRef', 'Alert me when: New articles cite this article', 'RSS (Citation Alert)', 'Download to citation manager', 'Related articles found in: Annual Reviews, ISI Web of Science', and 'View Most Downloaded Reviews'. At the bottom right, there is a 'Quick Search' section with a dropdown menu for 'Annual Reviews' and a search box for 'Authors: Terence C. Halliday'.
